JOSEPH HATTON.

Coming of Christmas.

There is the competition among the Christmas displays of the shops full of a new year's sentiment. It is a pity the edge of the holiday is cut for the literary aspect of the time will be discounted to nothingness. The shops full of a new year's sentiment. It is a pity the edge of the holiday is cut for the literary aspect of the time will be discounted to nothingness. The shops full of a new year's sentiment. Mr. William Gailway is the richest man in the Canary Islands. His grandfather went there from England many years ago as British Vice-consul, and the family soon became both wealthy and respected. The present representative of the name owns more land in the Canaries than all the other planters put together. Mr. Gailway is the richest of the group of these luxurious islands. He owns about two-thirds of it. His vineyards are as fruitful as they are extensive. In Tenerife, the seat of government, and in Gomera, his lands yield enormous cargoes of olive oil. Thousands of his native vassals live on his estates. It is estimated that he is worth not less than 15,000,000. He has a lovely mansion at Las Palmas, where, as a Spanish subject, he holds the official position of Deputy-governor. A few months ago Mr. Gailway had business in Chicago. In the great hotels and city clubs of America, and in the railway depots, the lady stenographer and typewriter is a pleasant and busy figure. She is to modern civilization what the public letter-writer was in the olden days. If you are in a hurry to write your letters, or are anxious to make a quick contribution to some newspaper, or desire to sketch out a business correspondence, or a matter of importance, the lady stenographer and typewriter is a pleasant and busy figure.
